

Fish Printing is a Big Hit!

By Claire T. and Hannah S.

At Edison school all the kids get a chance to fish print when it's OCEAN WEEK! We got to go to fish printing and talk to some kids and teachers. Most of the kids did their fish on a t-shirt so they could wear it but some did something different. All of them loved the program and would look forward to it next year!

We talked to several teachers and students during the fish printing, and they were very excited about the process. Terry Martin's students were all printing on T-shirts with the Jowoepa fish. They all thought it was fun and cool. One student however would like to try squirrel printing, while another thought a scorpion would be more exciting to print! There were lot of parents and teachers helping, so Terry Martin and Karen Forward agreed that it went quite smoothly. Terry Martin's class had a great time!

How To Japanese Fish Print

by Kathryn K. and Jordan F.

#1. Paint the fish.

#2. Press the shirt on the fish.

#3. Pick up the item that you printed.

#4. Show it to the people.

#5. Paint the fish with paint.

#6. Then let the paint dry.
